Barista/Manager

(Occupation or description of duties)

Statement:

Current ownership has been here 22-23 years

I work 4 days as a Barista, w-sat. On Tuesdays is my manager day. Schedule, meetings w/ all other managers, ordering, & getting things prepared for the week.

I am able to hire & fire. I am paid on a salary basis. I am paid biweekly, every other Tuesday by check. My gross is around $930-$940. I make $1,800 a year in tips. I don't make the tips directly, its the tips I receive from the tip pool. So we have a tip jar at the Barista section & server section. Cash & credit card tips go in the jar then we count who all was here & divide it up. 5% of tips go to dishwasher & 5% to kitchen, & then the servers tip out the barista. The owner doesn't take tips. Management, I think, came up w/ the tip pooling. Thinking they contribute to so they should get an extra something. The cooks split up the tips among each other. I think every 2 weeks, they take their tips & split it up, based on who worked the most, etc. You'd have to ask Renea she came up with method.

Form WH-31 (Rev. May 2010)

I clock in & out. I am not paid by the hour. My pay is not deducted if work less or if I work more I don't receive more.

Elaine, my boss, hires servers. First we do phone interview, then a sit down w/ Elaine & I, then an "audition" where they come in & ^(11am-1pm) work, no pay but we feed them, & then we discuss if they are a good fit, & hire them from there.

There are 3 high speeders that work here 2 do dish & another does serving.

I have read the above & it is true.
